

Yolanda Uriz (flutes) and Ángel Faraldo (live electronics) started playing together in January 2007. Since then, they have been exploring different ways to relate to each other through free improvisation. Currently, they are working in the creation of a bidirectional interactive system, where both could have the same possibilities to influence and control the other's materials. They have presented their work in The Hague, Utrecht, Amsterdam and Athens, with coming performances in Madrid, Bilbao, A Coruña, London and Germany. Their first release will be available in the net-label Larraskito (www.xedh.org/larraskito) in June 2008. Besides their work in duet, they collaborate frequently with other improvisers in trio and quartet settings (Lynn Cassiers, Orlando Aguilar). They are both members of The Hague Improvisers Orchestra.
